

Allowing passengers to use cell phones while onboard aircraft is a terrible idea. It is hard enough to get people to pay attention to 2 minutes of safety information as it is. Now imagine 350 people talking at once while, I, a flight attendant, present them with life saving information. It is also a terrible disservice to those sitting around the passengers who choose to watch the safety demo or would just like to enjoy a bit of peace and quiet. Why the urgency to use a cell phone? Airphones are available for things so important it can't wait a few hours????
